Early 20th Century Indian Agra Carpet

Description

The ever popular herati design here densely fills an old ivory ground with a multiple border system centered around a complex double vine and palmette scroll on a black background. As in Agra workshop carpet, the pattern is perfectly proportioned in all directions.

The barbed 'fish' leaves are the most prominent elements of the closely set Herati allover pattern on the ivory field, producing broken lozenge lattice over pattern. Very dark wine-brown main border of angular turtle palmettes and faceted connecting vinery. Good condition on this antique carpet.
