19th Century N. Chinese Mongolian Carpet

Description

Mongolian carpets do not fit into the usual Chinese typology. Very often square, with limited palettes and of coarser wool, they seem to be woven by a separate craft tradition. This very attractive example has a Classic blue and white color scheme, dragon and fretwork corners, and Chinese objects (vases on dstands, Go boards, books), with a main paeony scroll border derived from Ningxia rugs. Regardless of exact origin, this circa 1880 carpet is totally authentic and impeccably Chinese in style.
